NEWS RELEASE

MORRISON UTILITY SERVICES SCOOPS TWO INDUSTRY AWARDS FOR HEALTH AND SAFETY PERFORMANCE

Morrison Utility Services has been awarded two major industry awards in recognition of its track record in occupational health and safety.

The company was awarded its second consecutive gold medal at the 2009 RoSPA Occupational Health & Safety Awards bringing the tally of RoSPA awards since 2003 to two gold awards, two sectors awards (in the construction sector), one commendation and two gold medals. Gold medals are presented to companies who consistently merit more prestigious awards - gold award or better - over at least five consecutive years.

Morrison Utility Services has also been awarded a British Safety Council International Safety Award in recognition of our commitment to improving corporate health and safety. The award is recognised by the Health and Safety Executive for its emphasis on achieving high standards and gaining board-level commitment to health and safety.

Paul Kerridge, Safety, Health, Environment and Quality Director, comments:

“These awards really endorse our commitment to health and safety and recognises the exceptional levels of hard work put in on the ground. It cannot be emphasised enough how seriously safety is taken across the business and we are proud of our current, industry leading Accident Frequency Rate of 0.17. Everyone has a responsibility to ensure that they work in safe conditions and we have worked hard to develop a safety culture making safety awareness second nature. I am delighted that RoSPA especially has recognised this with a second consecutive gold medal.”
